

MUSICIAN'S WIDOW WANTS THOMAS'S NAME RETAINED

Tearfully Protests Directors'
Change to "The Chicago
Symphony Orchestra."

FEARS FOR HIS FAME.

Labored Hard for Years for Symphonic Music and Introduced Wagner Here.

A half dozen immaculate gentlemen sat at a directors' table in Chicago today and decided that, protests notwithstanding, their action in changing the name of the Theodore Thomas Orchestra to "The Chicago Symphony Orchestra" must stand.

Good and sufficient business reasons were behind the decision, but Mrs. Rose Fay Thomas, brooding alone in her apartment in this city, No. 282 Park avenue, took it as a slight to the memory of her husband.

She had hoped that her letter of protest, received in Chicago yesterday, would in some way change the attitude of the directors and trustees of what was, until a few days ago, the Theodore Thomas Orchestra.

"Changing the name," she wrote, "has shocked and pained me, as I am sure it does every music lover who honors the memory of Theodore Thomas. I protest in all earnestness. Nor do I think the trustees have the moral right to change the name after accepting the great orchestral library, the finest in existence, from the Thomas family."

DIRECTORS' DECISION MAKES MUSICIAN'S WIDOW WEEP.

"If the name is not good enough for the orchestra it would be mockery to keep the words, 'Theodore Thomas Orchestra Hall' on a building. If the name of Theodore Thomas is no longer good enough for the orchestra which under his baton was raised not only to national but to international fame as the standard bearer of American music, then I must respectfully request, as he would were he here, that his name may also be erased from everything else connected with the Chicago Orchestra Association forever."

Mrs. Thomas consented to see an Evening World reporter today. Tears came in her eyes when she was told of the trustees' decision.

"They are razing my husband's monument," she said bitterly. "Now his memory will pass away, like himself, and the name of Theodore Thomas will be forgotten. He was an artist—a great artist. Had he been a painter, or a sculptor, or an architect, he could have left behind him a firmer fabric than his music to immortalize him. But he built with notes and bars and chords that die away as they are sounded."

WIDOW PRAISES GENIUS AND TELLS OF EARLY STRUGGLES.

"Theodore Thomas was more than a great musician; he was a great man. He raised himself as much by the force of his personality as by his genius. I had known him for years before we were married and watched his struggles. Facing successive financial reverses, he struggled to make the public appreciate symphonic music, and he succeeded. It was he who introduced Wagner to this country, who carried the most noble in music to the far corners of the nation.

"When Chicago made Mr. Thomas an offer to come here with his orchestra, he accepted. He brought about sixty musicians of the Theodore Thomas Orchestra with him and the new organization was known as the Chicago orchestra."

"In 1905, when Mr. Thomas died, the name was changed to the Theodore Thomas Orchestra, to keep his memory green. I appreciated that, as did every one of Theodore Thomas's friends. We gave them the great orchestral library, the most complete ever assembled."

"They change the name now to the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, but it is only a business move. They are afraid that another orchestra will be established and take the name which, they believe, is a big financial asset. For them it is a business—money, for me, sadness."

Part of the new title is an appended clause, "Founded by Theodore Thomas." But this does not satisfy the widow. Her husband, she contends, did not found the Chicago Orchestra, and the inaccuracy, she thinks, would be a blot in the future.

TWO MEN ACCUSED BY SEVEN LITTLE GIRLS.

Prisoners Are Held Without Bail
Accused of Impairing the Morals of Children.

Seven little girls ranging from nine to thirteen years of age, appeared in Centre Street Police Court today as complainants against Sanford Christie, forty-four years old, a painter, of No. 109 Madison street, and Joseph Erra, a fruit dealer, of No. 22 Oliver street, accused of impairing the morals of children. The men were held without bail by Magistrate Levy to await the action of the Grand Jury.

Agent Pizzaro of the Children's Society submitted affidavits made by the nine little girls in court. He said he had the names of a dozen others who will give corroborative testimony, and knows of many more who have refused to talk, but whose names have been furnished by their companions. All the girls live around Madison and Oliver streets and attend public schools in Oliver and Henry streets. The Children's Society was called into the case two weeks ago by the mother of one of the girls, who confessed to her relations with Christie and Erra.

GETTYSBURG VANDAL AGAIN.

Another Monument Hacked and Guilty One Not Caught.

GETTYSBURG, Pa., March 6.—Another monument on the battlefield—that of the first New Jersey Regt.—was found today to have suffered at the hands of the vandals who visited the historic ground on Tuesday night. The monument is a large shaft located in the Valley of Death. Chips were broken from the corners and the memorial was badly defaced. Eight monuments were yesterday found to have been badly damaged, and it is feared that others may have suffered at the hands of the miscreant. With the many hundreds of monuments on the field, an investigation cannot be completed for several days. Representatives of the National Park Commission have not yet been able to discover the identity of the vandals.

MRS. WARDWELL LEAVES $20,000 TO INSTITUTIONS.

Rest of $250,000 Estate Goes to Kin, Sister, However, Getting Only $5,000.

Martha W. Wardwell, who died Feb. 23, 1912, at No. 21 West Fifty-eighth street, in her will and codicil filed today in the Surrogate's Court disposed of over $250,000 and left of this amount over $20,000 to church and benevolent institutions.

The following institutions receive bequests: Society for the Promotion of the Gospel Among the Jews, $1,000; New York Association for the Blind, $2,000; St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Rahway, N. J., $3,000; American Bible Society, $1,000; Domestic and Foreign Missionary Society of the Protestant Episcopal Church, $1,000; New York Exchange for Women's Work, $2,000; Trustees of the Fund for Aged and Infirmer Clergymen of the Protestant Episcopal Church in the Diocese of New York, $1,000; St. John's Guild, $1,000, and the National Temperance Society, $500.

The testatrix leaves to her sister, Elizabeth R. Stetson, of No. 4 East Seventy-fourth street, "my love, but no money, as I believe her to be amply provided for," but in the codicil she changes this bequest and leaves her sister, "as a slight token of my love, $5,000."

Numerous other bequests are made to relatives, the largest being $10,000 to Edward L. Rogers of Lawrence, L. I., a brother.

The residuary estate is left to Rogers and her cousin, William Porter, Helen Hansford, Helen W. Davis and Mollie Juddely, to share equally.

SCHOOLS ASK FOR
$1,400,000 MORE.

Devices Ordered by Fire Prevention Bureau Cause Demand.

In addition to $3,000,000 allotted to conduct the public school system the Board of Education wants $1,400,000 for fire protection. The request was made today to the Board of Estimate and was referred to the Budget Committee. The Board of Education says this item of expense was not contemplated in the school budget for 1913 and is the result of the action of the Bureau of Fire Prevention calling for protection devices in a large number of schools.

The Board of Education figures the cost in each borough will be: Manhattan, $12,000; Bronx, $13,000; Brooklyn, $27,000; Queens, $25,000; and Richmond, $11,000.

LYMAN LEFT YALE $80,000.

Request of New York Artist Will Be Used to Assist Students.

WALLINGFORD, Conn., March 6.—Funeral services will be held this evening for Joseph Lyman, a New York artist, by whose death at Rosemary Farm, the country home of his sister, Mrs. William G. Choate of New York, yesterday, Yale received a legacy of $80,000. The body will be taken to Brookwood, N. J., tomorrow for burial. Death was due to pneumonia, with which Mr. Lyman was stricken Sunday. He was sixty-five years old and unmarried. He had been accustomed to spend part of the year at the New York home of Mrs. Choate, who is a sister-in-law of the former Ambassador to England, and a part of the year at her country residence here.

It was stated definitely by the Yale University treasurer at New Haven today that the amount of the Lyman bequest was only $80,000 and not $200,000 as previously reported. The income, which is subject to a life interest of $500, is to be used to assist worthy students at Yale.

AUTO TANK EXPLODES IN TRIPLE COLLISION.

A Madison avenue car this afternoon ran into an automobile, smashed it and, sending it forward into a second automobile and exploding the gasoline tank of this first, at the busy intersection of Fourth avenue and Fourteenth street, which was patrolled for awhile. Miss Florence Hayes of No. 215 West Eighty-eighth street, who was in the first car, was thrown to the floor and suffered from shock.

Traffic Policeman Farley had just stopped north and south traffic and the two autos were on the track. Motorman Dennis could not jam his brakes down quickly enough and crashed into the rear of the limousine owned by Samuel Wolff of No. 38 West Thirty-fifth street. In this auto was Miss Hayes. The second auto, into which the Wolff machine was jammed, is owned by William H. English of No. 211 Berkeley place, Brooklyn, and was driven by Charles Cockington of No. 41 Park avenue.

Neither Miss Hayes nor Wolff's chauffeur, Philip Smeltzer of No. 43 Bryant avenue, was hurt by the explosion of the gas tank. The limousine was a wreck.
